Resilience

Launched in the summer of 2025, Ohio Climate Stories seeks to capture Ohioans' experiences with climate disasters such as heat waves, polar vortices, flooding, and power outages.

So many times we hear about the number of people impacted by extreme weather events, but it can be impersonal. Ohio ClimateStories puts a face with these events. Real people, making real decisions that impact their very real lives.

This project lets people know they are not alone in dealing with extreme weather events and may give them new ideas of how to be resilient. It is a way for residents to offer suggestions on what local/state government could do to help. As you watch the videos, you will see the impact of climate disasters and the hope and resilience of your fellow Ohioans.

Tell your story by contacting us. The Ohio Climate Stories is made possible by you.

How to Participate:

Set up an in-person or virtual interview with an Ohio Climate Stories team member. Email: OhioClimateStories@gmail.com

Think about how one or more of these climate-induced events impacted your life, how you made it through, and how you became more resilient. What words of wisdom will you share to help others?
